TECHNICALLY THEY WERE STOWAWAYS

There is always a record of one kind or another being taken aboard the ship. This one is a little different. It was a peculiar record for infants in one trip and possibly an all-time mark for a Pacific crossing.

CUT CAKE AT RECEPTION

The large crowd that attended last Sunday's baseball game witnessed one of the finest exhibitions of pitching seen here in several years, when Bill Shields set the strong Satchems team down with two hits while striking out four batters. Shields was really "fogging 'em in" all afternoon and it was due to his mated, rugged fielding which led him that he was robbed of the victory that rightfully was his.

Up until the eighth inning Bill had allowed no hits and one earned run while striking out ten. Brumleve opened the eighth by getting on base on a single, but error. Harp walked. Russell then tripped to score Brumleve and Harry Franke then scored. Shields on a ground ball to Reid, who insisted on getting the batter at first, decided to cut the man off at home. On this throw, Shields, who had been in the game since he doubled to score two men. Results: six runs, two hits, three errors.

In the issue of Thursday, October 1, 1888, forty years ago "Moses in the Wilderness" favors The Jeffersonian with another interesting letter on the travels through the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and other parts of the State. "Since writing last," he informs, "I have visited some of the best towns in the southwestern part of Kentucky. We were in London, Laurel County. London is a good town of perhaps 3,000 inhabitants. It attracts perhaps more druggists than any town of its size in the State. Yes, I believe, twice as many. It's a live town and supports a splendid educational institution. The L. and N. is double-track, the Knoxville branch from Livingston to Corbin, and has shifted its tracks at London to the opposite side of the city from where they were. Corbin is the junction point of the northern with the Knoxville division, and a growing town.

Barbourville is an excellent mountain town of 3,500. The Baptists have an excellent church there and the Northern Methodists have their chief college there. The E. Conference was in session upon the subject of slavery upon the public tongue, for several years. These towns are all growing fast, the latter being situated on the Cumberland River. We are now in Middleboro, which is 18 years ago, the greatest boom town Kentucky has ever had. Laid out under a plan by an English capitalist, people's mad over the craze, developed over the promise of coal and found in quantities in the area. I was here in 1880 when the business was done in tents. All kinds of merchandising was carried on in tents, for there was in such a hurry to get into business they could not wait to build. They couldn't get material, labor, fast enough. Real estate was sold up upon the plan for $112 per front foot. On that trip I slept in the pastor's study in a church on a corner. There was no hotel—no other place to sleep. Then came the place of the '90's and Middleboro began to prosper. Millions of dollars had been invested in magnificent buildings—homes and business buildings—many ruined or crippled for life. But there was revival, the town has begun to grow and this growth is a healthy one. (Middleboro today is a thriving and still growing city of more than 25,000.) It is surrounded by coal mines, cooking-oil plants, iron furnaces, a live business city and has handsome hotels. What Ashland is to eastern Kentucky, Middleboro is to southern Kentucky. (Middleboro is in sight of Cumberland Gap and on the great Wilderness Road. Further north, the "Pinnacle" is a high point near, rising hundreds of feet, with a view of miles and miles around.) "From here we go to Harlan, in the Big Black Mountains," Moses concludes. Buechel was still pointed out as a boom. "John Drescher was building a handsome residence on a farm recently purchased, a big meeting was on at the Buechel Presbyterian Church; John Wheeler was building an addition to his barn; there were plans on for a new schoolhouse; the Singing Club of Newburg was to meet Saturday night of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mills. The Rev. E. W. Elliott was conducting the Presbyterian protracted meeting. The Rev. Robert Doll preached his last sermon of the season at Hike's schoolhouse.

More than $400 had been spent at the schoolhouse at Harlan Creek by the School Improvement League. Lee Barbour, for eight years a county patrolman in Worthington was praised for his good record, faithful services. His term had expired and friends, regardless of party affiliation, were proposing him as Magistrate with good chance of election.

When Dr. and Davis, Jefferson-town, announcing the arrival of several carloads of coal, advised that it was a good time to put in winter stock. E. R. Sprawl was holding several auction real estate sales, some to settle estates. W. B. Leatherman was the Jefferson-town blacksmith. Drs. Boggs and Thomas were dentists in the town and advertisers. Dr. J. W. Wells was advertising his drug store and had a sideline of groceries. More such units are planned to be built in the future. This work is under the supervision of Dr. Howard Marsh, former pastor of the Cedar Springs Church of Christ.

The young people's Sunday night Bible class met for a little party Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Conn. Those who were privileged to attend had a very good time.

The Ladies Bible class will meet for all next meeting at the church this Thursday. Fall house cleaning is planned for part of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Goss entertained for all the children and grandchildren Saturday night for supper.

Carolyn Baete spent Friday night and Saturday in Louisville with her aunt, Mrs. Adele Born.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ernst gave a birthday party Friday night for their daughter, Mary's eleventh birthday. Some 25 children and a few adults helped celebrate the occasion. She received several nice and useful gifts. Ice cream and cake were served and several games played. All left wishing her many more birthday parties as this was her first one and she was very happy over the whole affair.

HOW SOCIALIZED MEDICINE WORKS
Dr. E. L. Henderson, Louisville physician, has a worldwide reputation as a surgeon. Returning recently from his third trip to Europe during the past two years he said that if the members of Congress could see how state medicine works abroad they would never think of introducing it in this country.
On his latest trip to the Eastern continent, Dr. Henderson attended the sessions in Rome of the International College of Surgeons. In every European nation where socialized medicine is practiced, he said, there has been a decline in the standards of medicine care.
More evidence to that effect comes from New Zealand, where the government medical program was much praised when first introduced. In its promotion the politicians had promised unlimited benefits. But after putting it in effect they were forced to ask the doctors to restrict services to their patients, a request the physicians have refused to heed, although their burden has become so great that, in many instances, appointments have to be made four months in advance. Many patients, it is said, who would not have been in the doctors' offices without they need attention or not, on the theory that they have the service coming. The New Zealand plan is now in process of revision.

GOOD PICKING FOR INDEPENDENTS
The Democrats need to gain only four seats to control the Senate. That causes more concern among G.O.P. leaders for contests for the Senate than with the presidential election. Although Kentucky is regarded as being beyond the borders as one of the states where the senatorial race will be close, John Sherman Cooper, the present Republican incumbent, is regarded by Democrats, as well as Republicans, as one of the country's most high type statesmen.
The Independent voters of this state will probably appreciate the fact that this is one time when the merits of the man really count, and that they do not have to merely choose the lesser of two evils.

NEW LIGHT SHINES FROM MADISONVILLE
A new star has appeared in Kentucky weekly newspaperdom. It emerged at Madisonville on September 23 and promises to light the way of the Commonweal from week to week as a literary torch, to be known as the Hopkins County Times.
Its incorporators and publishers are Mack Sisk, general manager; T. W. McConnell, Editor; Robert L. Towse, advertising manager; Lowell Davis, production manager; and Niles O. Dillingham, business manager. A lead editor in the first issue introduces the new paper by declaring its political independence and promising not to be a "fence sitter."

We bid the Times welcome to the Fourth Estate.

There are today a lot of people who don't mind living in the house by the side of the road and being a friend to man, if the house has steam heat, an electric ice box, an electric washing machine, air conditioning, new decorations and period furniture—if the rent isn't more than they think it should be.

Weekly Advice: Of all the things that humankind need to guard against, procrastination is outstanding. The nobility of good intentions is never to be denied. But the will and the energy to make them tick is what it takes to bring success.

Sparks and Sundries
By Samuel H. Stuart
The proprietor of a country store general store had just closed a farmer 18 cents per dozen for his eggs (the time, incidentally, was about 1910). The farmer, remembering how recently given a dollar per, scoffed, "I might's well give you the eggs!"
"That would be all right, too," the storekeeper chaffed, "giving to me is just like giving to the preacher!"
Not long after this interchange took place the merchant was arrested, tried and sent up for a "stretch" for knowingly receiving stolen property.
Well, giving to that man was not like giving to the preacher, but, in general sense, where the recipient is at all a worthy individual, giving to anyone has at least some of the elements of a religious benevolence. Raised in a minister's home, I was early trained to the view that generosity, even to the poor, is a virtue, and more beneficial to the giver than to the recipient. Time and experience have confirmed me in this principle.
As a minister's family, we were often offered some gift—especially of cast-off clothing or household effects—with the preference, "Hope you won't take any offense but—" and who in one's senses would be offended at a show of kindness? Giving, when freely done, either from a religious motive or a sense of human sympathy, is one of man's noblest actions. It is senseless to discourage it by an attitude of false pride which only marks one as a rank ingrate. One's dignity as an individual is not increased by accepting a free gift, with no strings attached, but the giving of it increases the stature of the giver.

The violent death of Prince Bhandu, the son of the late Maharaja Ghandi, proves that in our confused times apostles of peace are no more safe than those who advocate violence. Like the Prince of Peace, who nearly 2,000 years ago was crucified in Jerusalem, the Danish peace-maker of royal blood was an innocent victim of a group who were their own and their nation's worst enemies.

All reports indicate that Bernadotte was fair to the Arab and Jews and had a singled-minded desire to prevent bloodshed. He said by those who were not to wage a war which everyone fears will bring, when the Arabs are fully aroused, destruction of life and property in the Holy Land. In this act of heartless cruelty, they have practically "reaped where they have sown" and upon our children" and one wonders when the torrent which they will break up on them. Sadly enough, it is the small extremist element which has precipitated the holocaust, if it does culminate.

What Kentucky Editors Are Saying
AND IT CAME TO PASS
Thus said Philip Arlington, States Rights Democrat Publicity Man.
And it came to pass that in the sixteenth year of the reign of the Democrats that one called Harry, Truman, who was the ascended to the throne, counseled with himself to the end that his day and the throne should be prolonged.
Then came forth unto him J. Howard McGrath of the island of Rhode and kept of the inner door and said unto King Harry: Lo, I bring said tidings O mighty king. For it is a day of trouble and of treading down of the people and there is much murmuring among thy people.
I have heard a rumour O mighty king that the Deweyites and the Wallaceites are sending treasures of silver and gold and gilded promises to the Ethiopians, seeking their favor to the end that thy days on the throne shall be short and unhappy.
Thus king Harry heard the words spoken unto him by J. Howard McGrath.
Then the king said unto J. Howard McGrath, I am afraid of the Deweyites and Wallaceites lest they deliver me back to the land called Missouri and mock me.
But J. Howard McGrath said: They shall not deliver you back to the land from whence thou camest, for I have said that which I tell you, so it shall be well unto thee and that thy reign shall continue to flourish themselves in thy household.
And it came to pass that king Harry spoke the words given him by J. Howard McGrath saying: Hearken unto me my people, and give ear unto me, O my nation, for a law shall spring from me. A law which will call the civil rights program.
Through the kingdom I command that all men, the white, the black, the red and the yellow and the best of the earth, and the cattle and everything that creepeth shall no longer follow after the gods of men.
The goal shall lie down with the sheep.

Letters to the Editor
CEDAR CREEK NEWS—80 YEARS AGO
Dear Jeffersonian Reader:
Suppose you are on the witness stand, the cross-examination attorney desires to make it appear that you are a person of poor memory. He asks: "Why were you in the Cedar Creek News office during the dates of August 24, and September 15, 1868?" In your confusion you say: "I don't know."
The attorney will turn in triumph and smile at the jury. The jury will say: "At least one of them will realize that probably you should have said, 'Why, I hadn't even been born yet!'"
But what if you were living 80 years ago? Well, if you were, and if you are one whose name appears in the Cedar Creek News, you can say that you were attending a revival meeting and that you joined the Cedar Creek Baptist Church during that period. Seriously, if you can say that, you may be the only one of a very few. So if you think you see your name in this list, take another look at the date—1868. Possibly it is the name of your father or your mother or some other near relative.
"Roll Of The Members Who Joined The Cedar Creek Baptist Church, Jeff. Co., Ky., Commencing February, August 24 and continuing three weeks and one day to September 15, 1868."

19. Joseph Bush
20. James Bush
21. Leonard Cole
22. Clarence Levi Keazle (McKeazle)

24. Hayden Brough
This list was found among the personal effects of the late Mr. H. D. Dean, a former correspondent of The Jeffersonian. Mr. Dean was 12 years old at the time this revival meeting was held, and were she alive today she doubtless could tell something of the personal and family history of each person whose name appears above. The list would appear to be in the handwriting of Mrs. Dean's sister, Mrs. Baird Hawkins, who died in 1935.

Would you be interested in knowing how many of the above-named are still living? Or how many of their direct descendants are living in Jefferson or nearby counties? If you are interested, why don't you send the Editor of The Jeffersonian as much information as you can about these good people, and send it before the next issue of The Jeffersonian goes to press? If each who can will contribute to the list, he will be repaid when he reads the published results of the contribution.

the sheep, the ox with the hare. Yes, even the ass with the elephant, they shall be together. Thus spake king Harry the Trumanite.
And it came to pass that the Trumanites marvelled at the words of their king and they were waiting and weeping and gnashing of teeth among the Deweyites and Wallaceites.
But it came to pass within a while after that there were those in the southern part of the kingdom that were not of the tribe of the Deweyites, Wallaceites nor Trumanites but were called Statesrights and when the words of king Harry were brought unto them they did earnestly protest, saying: What manner of king is this that would in the twinkling of the eye change that which has been since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary and is foreign to the covenants handed down to us?
And it came to pass that king Harry closed his ears to their protests and the people rose up and smote him down. And the days which Harry reigned numbered not upon those three hundred and eighty-eight, and he took his place beside Herb Hoover.

RACIAL UNDERSTANDING
White people and colored people have long worked together on the farm, in the factory and in the home.
They must continue to do so. The next few months promise to test the bonds of friendship between the races here in the South as they have never been tested before. Northern extremists will seek to put Southern Negroes in danger and Southern extremists will seek to drive Southern whites into dangerous attitudes. Neither effort should succeed.
It is a time when each race should seek to understand the other and the people must give heed to the Negro's appeal for safety and justice. Negroes are a great and real people, and their rights must be protected. Our white people must not invent danger where there is none. And while much cruelty was inevitable under such a system, a great and real people have suffered from the loss of our family traditions show how often matter and slave lived together in peace and harmony. In the cold, cold ground and under my Meek to Old Virginia.

But slavery was wrong. And though nearly all the writer's ante-bellum kin were slaveholders, not even in our boyhood did we ever hear a Southerner express a wish that slavery should have been continued. And if the average Southern Negro's lot was hard since emancipation, so has the lot of most Southern white farmers, sharecroppers and tenant farmers. Both races have suffered from the loss of our family traditions show how often matter and slave lived together in peace and harmony. In the cold, cold ground and under my Meek to Old Virginia.

It has been the proud boast of white Southerners that the Negro's best friends are in the South. But if we are to continue to justify that boast, we must make faster progress in giving our Negroes better homes, better schools, better health conditions, greater economic opportunity, greater equality before the law. As to social intermingling, a great Negro educator, Booker T. Washington, 50 years ago said of the two races, "We can separate as the finger and the thumb, but as united as the hand in working together to help each other."

In this time of peculiar stress and turmoil we beg each race to separate as the finger and the thumb, but as united as the hand in working together to help each other. A program of such unity and extreme leadership, a little more than usual to show our friendship for all deserving Americans, is the other race. —Progressive Farmer.

All-Time Best Seller
Lesson for October 3, 1948
IF ALL the Bibles sold in one year by one manufacturer, the American Bible Society, were piled on top of one another, flat—not even the Bibles and testaments would be 20 miles high. In 1947 that firm put out the astonishing total of 1,000,000 Bibles, testaments or portions. During the first 125 years of the society's existence, 30,579,217 copies of Scripture have been printed and sold by this society, which would make one solid 870 miles long.
The Bible is the best selling book in the world. No other book is in its class.
Not to know the Bible is not to know the most widely read book in the world. The American Bible Society publishes it in 167 languages, but parts of it have been translated into as many as 1,600 languages and dialects.
Many Authors
Scripture must be done by many authors. There are many reasons why the Bible continues to be, year after year, the all-time best seller. But of the reasons is its impressive variety. It is not one thing, it is a variety of things, ever you need whatever your need, there is a page in the Bible, somewhere, for you.
A Christian who seriously to appreciate the whole Bible and not merely one or two parts of it, the all-time best seller, in it that invariably some people are attracted by one feature or another. The Bible makes stronger appeal to others.
Our studies these next three months will be in "The Literature of the Bible" and each week we shall be introducing ideas that will be a tremendous variety of the Bible, along with its underlying unity.
Many Types
LOOKING through the Bible you will find a variety of literary types; you find poetry and prose; stories, essays, sermons, biographies, dramatic dialogues, and so on. These are all types of literature, and they are all found in the Bible. The Bible is more like a piece of music played on a single instrument than it is like a symphony. It is more like an immense symphony—the more often we listen to it, the more we love it.
Many Times
NO ONE knows exactly how long it took for the Bible to be written. Let us suppose that the earliest parts came from the pen (or stylus) of Moses, and the latest part from about 100 years later (John and the Revelation). If Moses finished around 1500 B.C., that would make the Bible as completed 13 centuries after it was begun.
In 13 centuries much can happen, and much did. There is hardly any instance of a crime, there is scarcely any crime, however, however, which does not have its match in the Bible. If writers were inspired men, they knew God. But they also knew the times which they lived, and thus can speak to our times.
One Theme
FOR all the vast variety of the Bible, there is in it a deep and lofty unity. It is bound together by its purpose to make God real to man, and to bring man to God. The writers of the Bible may have had different aims, but they all had the same aim: to make God real to man, and to bring man to God. They wrote under the irresistible impulse, born of the Holy Spirit, to make God real to man, and to bring man to God.
So as you come to the Bible, remember its purpose is not to make you admire or revere it as a book; its first purpose is to be transparent, a window through which you shall see God.

There are few Americans who cannot get a thrill out of watching crops or flowering plants grow. And by the same token there are few who cannot get the satisfaction of planting the money which it will grow. Invest in U. S. Savings Bonds and your money will grow, producing 4% for every $5 put into these bonds. Your country needs your money and you will need money to do the things you dream of today. BE MARKET WISE
By Miriam Kelley
Field Agent in Marketing and Consumer Information, Department of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, U.S.D.A. Cooperating.

Little has been said recently in this column about meat—but other folks are talking about meats and making a lot of predictions about what may happen to the supply and to the price. So let us have our word today— we may not be completely right, but from here it looks as if we may continue to expect rather high prices for all retail cuts of meat. The supply cannot increase to such an extent that prices will be forced down any great amount. It is true that we are nearing the time when livestock moves to market in large numbers—this will be true during the next twelve months. The result will be seen in some lowering of meat prices. This means then that it is important for the housewife to continue to be careful in her use of meat, in order that it may provide the most tasty meals possible for her to prepare. Most families will use some meat—to prepare it to give the most flavor, and the most food value per serving.

Moderate heat cooks meat evenly and makes it tender. Moderate heat also keeps losses through cooking low, so there is more meat left to serve for each pound purchased. Browning meat develops the rich flavor; however, it may increase the cooking losses somewhat.

Be thrifty with left-overs—have all left-over meat, gravy, or drippings. Make broth of the bones, use left-over meat, and serve as sliced meat in salad, or combine with other foods in appetizing hot dishes such as stuffed peppers, cup soups, browned hash, or croquettes.

Call WA. 8636 or send a card to Room 437, Federal Building for a copy of Meat For Thrifty Meals—there are recipes for preparing all types of meats, gravies and stuffings.

Fruits and vegetables continue to be available in good supply, of many of them reasonable in price. These include apples—Jonathan, Grimes Golden, Winesap, all purpose apples; Michigan white celery—almost cheap, but full of food value and versatile enough to take an important place in any meal; home grown sweet potatoes—really excellent quality, don't forget to look for them when you do your shopping; they are much better than freshly dug sweet potatoes are—but be sure they are home grown ones if you are interested in the grown beets, turnips, squash, several kinds of greens—and all reasonably priced.

Tomatoes continue in fair supply—in the home garden, you may be fortunate to have an abundance, especially green ones you want to use. A green tomato to mince meat is excellent and a good way to use those last green tomatoes. This recipe from the Bureau of Home Economics will help you make use of those green tomatoes: 4 quarts finely chopped green tomatoes, 2 quarts (8-10 medium sized) pared, finely chopped tart apples, 1 pound raisins, 4 tablespoons minced onion, lemon, or orange peel, 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon ground allspice, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 2½ cups firmly packed brown sugar, 3½ cups granulated sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 cups water. Combine all ingredients and cook mixture slowly until tender and slightly thickened. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour into hot, sterile jars, and seal according to type lids used. Process in water bath 10-15 minutes in water bath. This recipe makes about 3 quarts. If desired, increase brown sugar to 5 cups and omit granulated sugar. And the vinegar may be increased to 1 cup, omitting the lemon juice.

"Chessie" Makes New Friends

"Chessie," the Chesapeake and Ohio's famous sleepy kitten, is taking care of small fry riding C&O trains with a Chessie coloring book-cum-cross-and-a "comic book" history of the railroad from 1827 to today's "Train X." Entitled "George Washington's Railroad—His Dream Realized," the comic book may look to the young reader like his favorite on the newsstands, but it is an infantile account of an exciting chapter in the country's history. The coloring book acquaints young travelers with railroading by offering twelve full page color pictures of train personnel, including the conductor, engineer and dining car waiter. On the opposite page is a black and white outline of the same scene, to be colored by the young artist. Special crayons will cause no harm if applied to the mouth instead of the paper. In PHOTO ABOVE, little Diane Donohue, 4, of Chicago, looks delighted as C&O Frodoe Wanda Stephenson reads the comic book to her. Both books will be distributed free on trains and will also be sent by mail from the company's Cleveland office in response to requests from the famous Chessie's hosts of admirers.

THE OLE SARGE JOTS 'EM DOWN

What I have to say in this edition of my column may be taken as advisory, as a warning or as a threat. But of one thing you may be sure. The Jefferson County highway death rate is too high—27 this year. Some of these deaths were school-age children.

This proposition is one that just has to be faced by the automobile driving public and in particular by the Jefferson County Police Department. For this department is charged with the responsibility of safety of the highway.

In order to meet its responsibility in highway safety, the Jefferson County Police Department just has to get tough.

Here, briefly, are the school one driving rules—and mind you, they are being enforced.

Motor vehicles may not exceed 15 miles and hour in school zones; obey county police directions when there is a patrolman on duty; respect the directions of the school bus patrol, and above all, be careful.

In order to help motorists, the County Police Division of Education and Safety is conducting classes in various schools in the county on safety. The County Police are trying to be sure that every child knows life conduct on the highway. The County Police believe that traffic education among the school children will be a great help toward cutting down accidents and also will be helpful to motorists.

But the motorists must cooperate in this safety program if the accident and death record is to be reduced at all—from last year's total of 53 deaths in highway mishaps.

The County Police will have patrol cars or motorcycles along with our own assigned white safety vehicle at the various schools. That white police car is equipped with a loudspeaker system and this will be used to issue warnings to motorists. It should any actual violations be seen by the policeman on duty, citations will be issued immediately.

The County Police "crack down" extends further than the schools. It applies to a number of other traffic hazards and offenses. Those specifically are fast driving, reckless driving, bright headlights and passing school buses while the bus is stopped.

These points are listed as the major causes of accidents in Jefferson County. So it is necessary that the County Police "get tough" if they are going to fulfill their obligation to make the highways safe.

Now, you've heard about the police "cracking down" or "getting tough" before. But what the County Police mean by getting tough and cracking down now is that arrests will be made, citations will be issued and the police will appear in court to prosecute the case. And the police have the aid of the various judges who sit in these courts that the fines and penalties issued traffic law violators will be heavy.

I've spoke a few paragraphs ago about classes in various schools on highway safety. These programs will be presented to other groups and organizations upon request to the County Police.

By education of the motorist and the pedestrian on traffic safety, we hope to avoid accidents and for that matter, to avoid having to make arrests and issue traffic citations.

The County Police aren't trying to be mean when they hand out a ticket—they are just trying to help you and others to get home without getting hurt—or hurting someone.

BIDDING FOR INDUSTRY

Tom Gregory, managing editor of the weekly Central Record, furnishes me with the text for today's little piece, which is about Lancaster's method of inviting a second small factory needed to absorb its surplus male labor. I like the Lancaster invitation because it is both candid and honest.

The Garrard County Board of Commerce got a work clothing plant for the county seat town, but 95 per cent of the 250 employees are women. So the next move was for a factory employing men. The clothing manufacturing concern, with approximately 100 applications of men in its files, cooperated with the Board of Commerce in making a survey.

Cards were mailed all over the county and a thorough canvass was made in Lancaster. The check-up showed there were easily 150 male laborers available.

In its general statement the Board of Commerce gives its own census figures, based on a house-to-house canvass. The population is 2,327. No exaggerated claim. No empty boasting. A new county hospital is under construction, and the town has good schools and active service clubs.

I'll lay you a ten-to-one bet Lancaster gets the factory it wants.

In recent years, boards of trade in Kentucky towns and small cities have learned a lot about bidding for new industries. One of the first things they do nowadays is to ascertain their labor resources. Electricity comes second maybe. Then schools, hospitals and recreation facilities. After which they try to publicize what they have to offer—make their message reach possible factory builders.

When I was a newspaper reporter in Henderson 40 years ago, the methods of a board of trade were quite different. Every now and then local business men would work themselves into a fever. Their enthusiasm was admirable but their procedure was pitiable. They were eloquent in praise of their city. They chartered trains and went on booster tours. Maybe they would get 100 miles from home. The crowd had a good time, of course. But they reached nobody who would even think of building factories in their town. Naturally, nothing happened. Enthusiasm would sag and in all probability the board of trade would fade out completely. Then in two or three years a bunch of business men would organize under another name and repeat the performance. The trouble was that these men didn't know how to put their message across. That, however, was a long time ago. Today Henderson is a rapidly growing city.

Ten years ago I urged a board of trade manager to write the industrial advantages of his city in a 60 word classified advertisement and run it in a magazine like Business Week, or some other periodical reaching industrialists. A periodical with 125,000 circulation would reach 50,000 industrial executives. If the advertisement cost $50, that would mean reaching possible factory builders at a cost of one dollar per thousand. The suggestion is as good now as when I first made it.

The 100 or more Kentucky cities and towns seeking new industrial plants must make themselves heard beyond their county lines. The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce will help these towns be heard.

Uncle Sam Says

Millions of Americans are dedicating themselves to the support of our Government by word and action. Nearly 19 million of them are doing their share through the purchase of U. S. And some day, these dollars saved, will be returned to them with interest, $6 for every $3 invested. These bonds are truly patriotic. Remodeling Plans Furnished Farmers
Due to high prices of new buildings and equipment, the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, is stressing remodeling and general improvement of houses and equipment now on farms. During the past year 2,888 plans were furnished farmers in Kentucky and 247 sent to farmers in 37 other states. Many plans also were given out at a series of equipment shows held in 25 counties and attended by more than 23,000 persons.

Special plans of walk-through types of milking parlors were prepared to assist farmers in reducing labor and building costs on dairy farms. Educational work was done on hay driers to reduce harvesting losses and to improve the quality of feed for livestock.
